Forethoughts

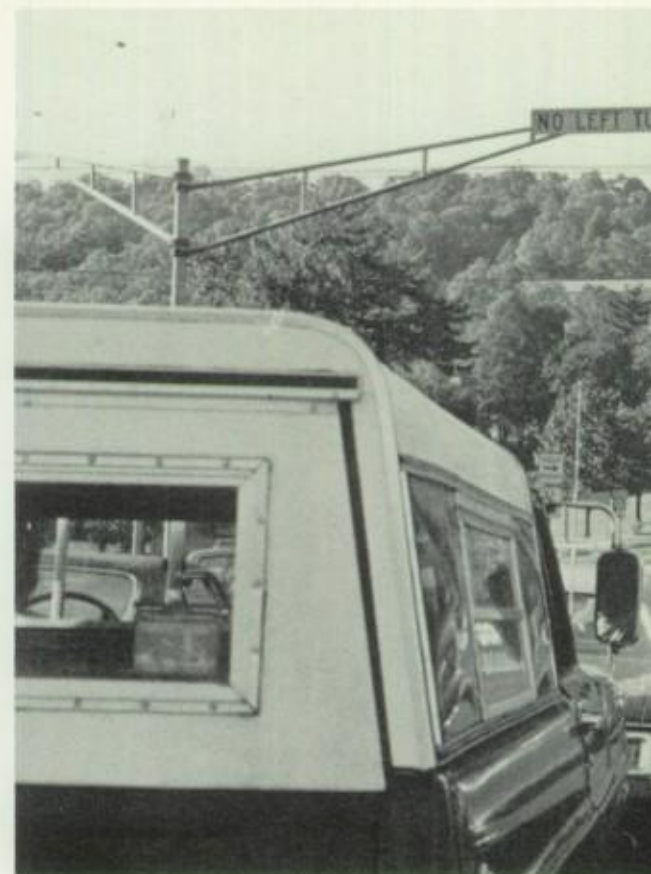

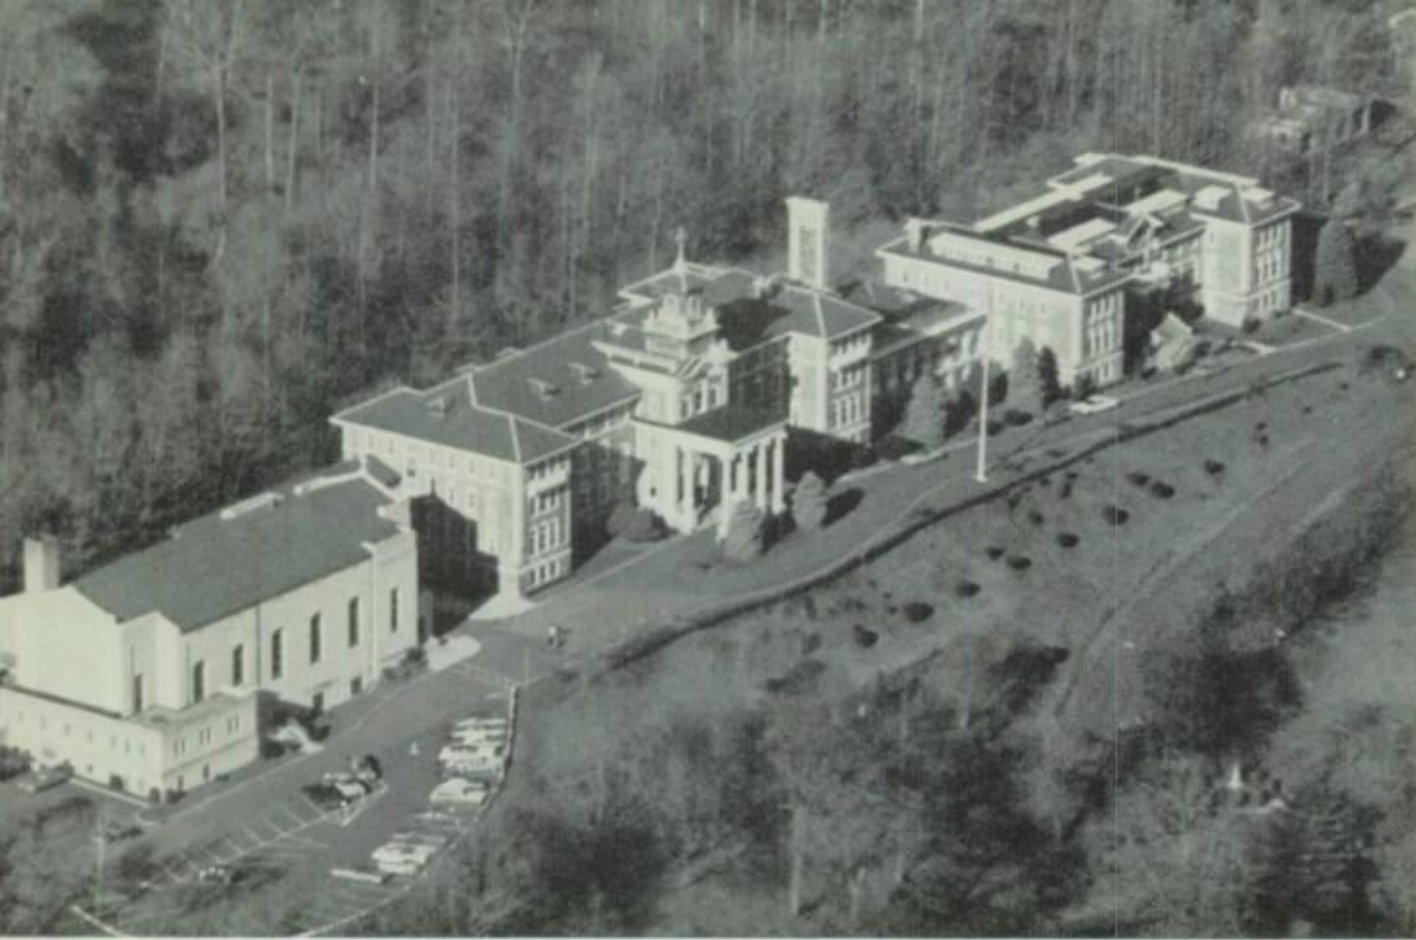

A black and white photograph of a winter scene. In the foreground, a snow-covered road with two dark tire tracks leads from the bottom left towards the right. To the left of the road, there is a large, dark tree with bare branches. In the background, a dense forest of bare trees stands against a light sky. The ground is covered in a thick layer of snow, with some small bushes and trees visible in the middle ground.

Naturally we saved the beginning till the end—13 hours before the final deadline.
We even have the closing written.
The problem of this blank space perversely lingers.
So where do we start?

"I'll start with an egg-salad sandwich!"

All right, all right, this is getting entirely too silly!
Now that we've filled up some of this space,
let's get to the business at hand . . .

The main objective of Chimes '75 has been to portray (as vividly as possible in black and white) what happens when tradition and change collide. The Mount is traditionally a symbol of strength, stability, solitude, and solemnity; add to it individuals who are vibrant and colorful, often boisterous and always surprising, and you will come up with something quite unique. To capture the many moods and colors, the stability and change: this was our objective; here is our book.

English

The English department carried students through four very basic, but challenging years. Miss Miller's and Sister Petrina's fundamental programs for underclassmen served as unshakable foundations in reading, writing, and interpretation. Sister Laetitia's expertise in grammar enabled her to work side-by-side with students. Sister Joan's Journalism class was the backbone for Peeks' structure while British Lit. students crossed the sea to merry olde England with Sister Edith. Creative Writing made student fantasies realities. Sister Carolyn Martin, department chairman, taught both Man in the Twentieth Century and Seminar in Ideas, detailing the age-old search for identity and a grasp of the universe.

Music and Art

All aspects of man's creativity are contained in the most basic of studies: art and music. Sister Mary Daniel, department chairman, provided an atmosphere of harmony among students interested in music. Courses ranged from Music Theory to Great Composers. Private lessons were taught by Sister Mary Sharon (piano), Sister Florence Murtha (vocal), Mrs. Marilyn Hannon (organ), Mrs. Kathleen Hurley (harp), Mr. James Biddlecome (brass), Mr. Mitchell Weiss, (Single reed), Mr. Peter Simmons (double reed), and Mr. Donald Knasch (percussion).

The moving force in the art department, Sister Doris Kelly, introduced to the students this year a different technique: her own. While transforming M230 into a haven of creativity and relaxation, Sister Doris instilled in her students a more intense appreciation for the beauty of art.

Religion

Through the diligent efforts of Sister Maureen Conroy and Sister Carol Conly, students had the opportunity to make religion a vital part of their lives. Sister Maureen led the freshmen through the salvation history of the Old Testament, and the sophomores continued the journey into the New Testament.

Sister Carol introduced the juniors to today's views of morality and to the various religions that man has followed through the ages. With the seniors, Sister discussed such topics as prayer, suffering, and marriage.

Languages

Las lenguas no construyen murallas sino puentes.

Spanish enthusiasts, taught by Mrs. Elsa Carrion, Sister Maria Mystica, and Sister Rosalie, sat enthralled through a flamenco dance at Glassboro State College. That was only the beginning. Culture classes studied Latin-American nations from the cultivation of the coffee bean to current uprisings. Grammar, literature, and social traditions were also considered to give girls a more complete understanding of the Spanish way of life.

Linguae pontēs neque mūrōs struunt.

With orations from Cicero and a solemn celebration of Vergil's birthday, Sister Thaddeus and her Latin students proved that the ancient language is hardly forgotten.

Les langues ne construisent pas les murrailles mais les ponts.

Cassettes, slides, and dramatic improvisations enriched French studies. First and second year students mastered grammar and elementary vocabulary, aided by Mrs. Christine Marks and Sister Maria Mystica. Upperclassmen studied period literature and advanced grammatical constructions in standard and honor courses.

Languages build bridges, not walls.

Social Studies

Travel was an inherent part of the Social Studies department—that is, travel through the eyes and ears of those who made history. Settle back in your sedan chairs for a tour of the world!

As freshman, students saw ancient Athens with Mrs. Marilyn Hannon, department chairman and guide for the Ancient Medieval History tour. Their stay included a lengthy chat with Julius Caesar and a visit to a jousting tournament. Confucius say, "Welcome to China" as Far East History classes studied the Ming Dynasty, and strolled with Miss Linda Ferrari and Sr. Mary Shaun along the Great Wall, sipping green tea.

Juniors sailed to the New World with Columbus and Mrs. Hannon in U.S. History I, and stayed from the First Continental Congress to the Industrial Revolution. Honors students supplemented their travels with additional readings and audio-visual materials. Sr. Shaun acted as conductor when seniors boarded the scenic express leaving the Progressive Era, stopping at the League of Nations, and returning just in time for front row seats at LBJ's inauguration.

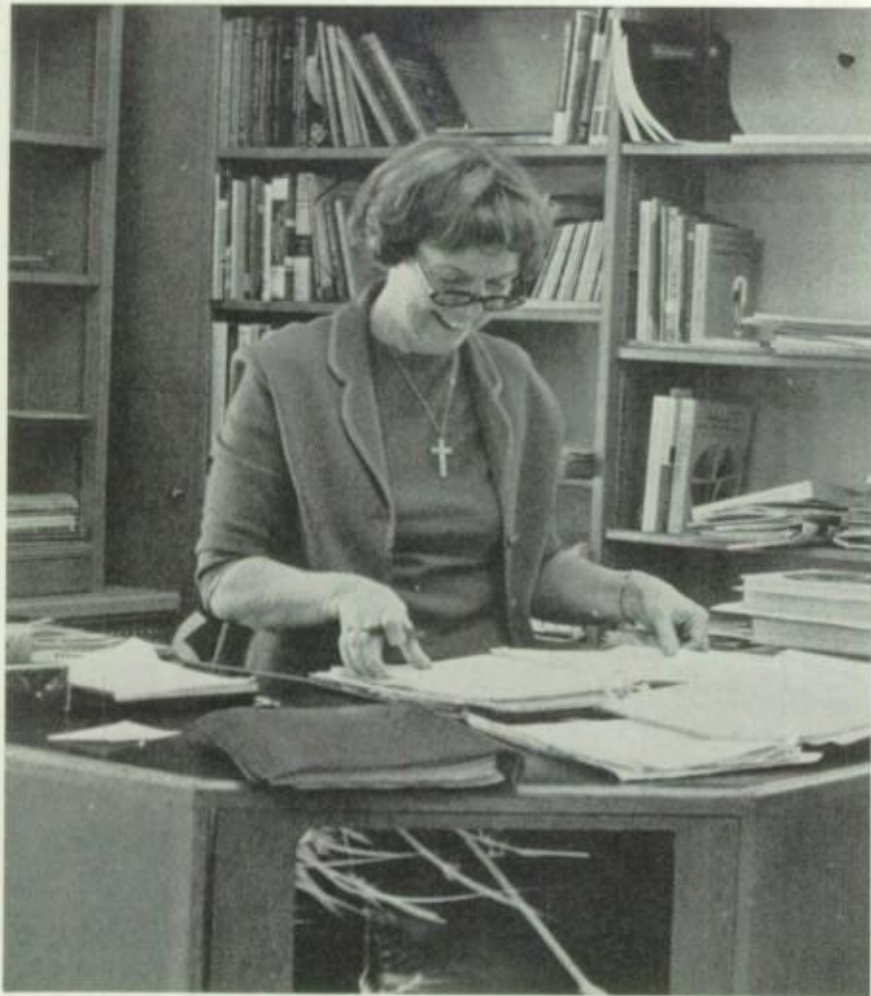

Sister Anselm helped seniors understand their rights and duties as citizens in Political Science, and her Communism in Russia class studied a system entirely different from American democracy. Sociology, taught by Sr. Maureen Conroy, provided students with a statistical and behavioral approach to modern life. Comprised of any interested girls, the Social Studies Club discussed the past in light of today's society. Meeting once a week, they added perspective to the Social Studies department.

Library

With mods free and work to do, where can a student go?

There's nothing like silence to soothe the working student and in the library Sister Helene, Sister Visita, and Miss Egan worked to achieve this ideal—usually with success.

Included in their quest for organization were the Library Aides, who spent two mods a week helping to keep the library in tip-top shape. Throughout the year the library provided a quiet haven for the project-laden student and the conscientious reader.

Math and Science

SISTER MARY AMADEO

MRS. CAROLINE CAFFREY

Encompassing a wide spectrum of ideas, Math and Science enable each girl to speak the language of symbols and properties. Sister Matilda, department chairman, introduced Algebra I students to their x's and y's while Mrs. Caffrey divided her time between geometric postulates and algebraic axioms. Modern Analysis students puzzled over the concept of infinity; in the next room, the Algebra II and Trig classes sharpened their minds on the system of complex numbers.

Sister Amadeo was often seen stretching the Physics slinky down lower corridor. Aspiring chemists studied bubbling, fizzing liquids from behind Sister Innocent's protective goggles. Sister Mary Grace explained to I.P.S. classes the need to experiment on anything and everything. Girls interested in both science and education went to St. Joseph's Grammar School in North Plainfield to teach Selected Topics in Science. The miracles of life unfolded before each sophomore's eyes as they probed the dynamics of life in Sister Ignatius' Biology Lab. With opportunities to research and draw conclusions, each student realized the significance of her life in the world.

Juniors are astonished by Lorie "Lightning Bolt" Higgins.

"Get those legs straight! Throw out those chests!" These familiar orders echoed daily in M.S.M.'s gym. With Mrs. Alvina Bella and Mrs. Barbara DeFillips, the girls strove for physical fitness.

Aside from her duties as school nurse, Mrs. June Steinheiser rounded out the concern for physical well-being by offering a complete health program to every student.

Behind the wheel of the new driver education car, Mrs. Bella helped form safe driving habits in prospective roadsters after teaching them the theory in Driver Ed. class.

Student Council

With a new year comes a new Student Council, bridging the gap between faculty and students. As moderator, Sister Carol Conly helped plan the projects taken on by both the executive board (President Beth Dyer, Vice-President Joanne Cantalupo, Secretary Mary Harkins, Treasurer Marion Buttafuoco, Service Director Karen Crovitz) and class and homeroom representatives.

One of their main projects was the candy drive, with proceeds going toward the final payments on the van. Each girl sold at least one box of chocolate to help. Student Council Week, featuring a variety of mini-courses was a great learning experience for everyone present. Hoping to renovate Adolf's House into an addition for McAuley Hall, a paper drive was sponsored to raise money. On the light-hearted side, they held the mixers and semi-formal dances for the student body.

As the year drew to a close the 1974-1975 Student Council knew they were one step closer to unity of purpose in the school.

Anti-Abortions March on Washington

When one holds very strong convictions, the best course of action is to go out and fight for the cause. This is exactly what Mary-nolen Clark, Joanne Cantalano, Ann-Denise Grech, Lisa Fittinelli, Imeline Koenig, Donna Harding, and Sister Maureen Conroy did, along with 50,000 other people, in favor of a pro-life amendment. The occasion was the "March for Life" held in Washington, D.C. on January 22, 1975, marking the second anniversary of the Supreme Court's decision to legalize abortion. People from all over the country, the farthest being Hawaii, gathered at the Capitol in order that their voices would be heard. Thousands of imaginative posters, such as "Baby Liberation", "Where Would You Be?", and "Modern Women Have Rights Too" were carried by participants. A red dove, the pro-life symbol, was carried by most of the people. Congress also received over 75,000 roses wired by those concerned but unable to attend. The crowd listened to notable legislators, such as Senator James L. Buckley (N.Y.), speak out for life and lend their support toward the enactment of a mandatory Human Life Amendment. Thousands then joined together to form "Circle of Life" extending almost a mile around the Capitol while the chant of "All we are asking is give life a chance" filled the air. The purpose of the "March for Life" is to give the clearest demonstration of popular support for a Human Life Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, though the demonstration was highly successful, it is not enough. Our faith and perseverance must continue; the fight has just begun.

ROCK AROUND THE CLOCK

Sponsored by the Class of '76 in an effort to raise money for a disaster-hit Honduras, twenty-two energetic couples initiated a twenty-two hour Marathon. The dance began in Berry Hall at 8 pm on Friday, February 7, and was scheduled to last until 8 pm on Saturday evening. A prize of fifty dollars was offered for the couple capable of completing the twenty-two hours.

The Eugene Tyrrell Band provided the evening three hours of music for the dancers of the regular mixer, as well as enthusiastic marathoners. On stage rewards filled the intervals between the segments of live music. The next band arrived to play at midnight. Known as Rock Awakening, their more familiar renditions of the Stones and Deep Purple were a welcome change from the preceding Eugene Tyrrell Band and their not too professional attempts at Country Rock and political satire. Rock Awakening carried the disapplying group into pro-dawn.

Free tuna fish sandwiches and a jazz jam session on guitar, bass, and trumpet by three random musicians from the series of bands to play the Marathon, brought the dancers to a foggy-headed 4 AM.

A mini-course on childbirth, a trip to Rahway Prison, independent study with teachers—these were just part of MSA's most successful Student Council week. Council President Beth Gyer believed that the locker decorations and candy of past years were not representative of the role student government plays at the Mount. Along with interested Council members, she worked out a schedule for the week that allowed each student to follow her own interests, and learn a little about several different fields.

Sweet speakers were invited to hold seminars on subjects such as preparing income tax, self-defense for women, water color, the poetry of e.e. cummings, and newspaper reporting. The class of '77 sponsored a movie ("Cover Girl," starring Gene Kelly and Fred Astaire) to benefit the upcoming Sophomore Juniors practiced for their King Mess, which the entire school attended; everyone celebrated Sister Kinise's Feast day on Friday. Trips to WCAU radio station in Philadelphia and the United Nations in New York were held; some students worked with children at Morley Hall and at Plainfield's state-supported day-care center. For those who made good use of their time, the week was informative and fun—a welcome break from classes.

Under the careful guidance of Sister Mary Lou Miller girls were able to spend time at McAuley Hall, assisting the handicapped children in their school work. These girls not only learned patience but also developed a sense of accomplishment in helping those less fortunate.

Renewal

In order to provide a more varied background on which to base their religious values, Mount students this year were offered the assistance of renewal groups. Composed of Juniors and Seniors, with help from Sister Maureen Conroy and Sister Carol Conly, the group helped with Freshmen and Sophomore retreats, which had as their themes "Jesus" and "Exodus" respectively. They organized places and times, as well as leading discussion groups and celebrating the Liturgy of the Mass with the students.

Upperclassmen left the Mount on retreats, juniors traveling to Lebanon as a class, and seniors splitting into small groups to pick their own retreat houses and times. Among the senior options were a Social Action for Underprivileged Children in Trenton and co-ed weekend gatherings at such centers as Christ House.

Each student worked harder toward a growth in Christian maturity as a result of these personalized retreat experiences.

Sister Carol adds her insight to the freshmen's discussion of self-awareness.

Helen Schoder, a renewal leader, explains the purpose of the freshman live-in.

Louise Koenig leads a panel discussion during her Christ House retreat.

Seniors share in the Mass as their retreat comes to a close.

With a little help from the students, The National Theater Company transforms Mercy Hall into a setting for The Miracle Worker, a play that captivated the entire student body.

National Theater Company

January 14, 1975. The National Theater Company took the student body to Tuscumbia, Alabama to witness Annie Sullivan's battle to free Helen Keller's mind in William Gibson's powerful play,

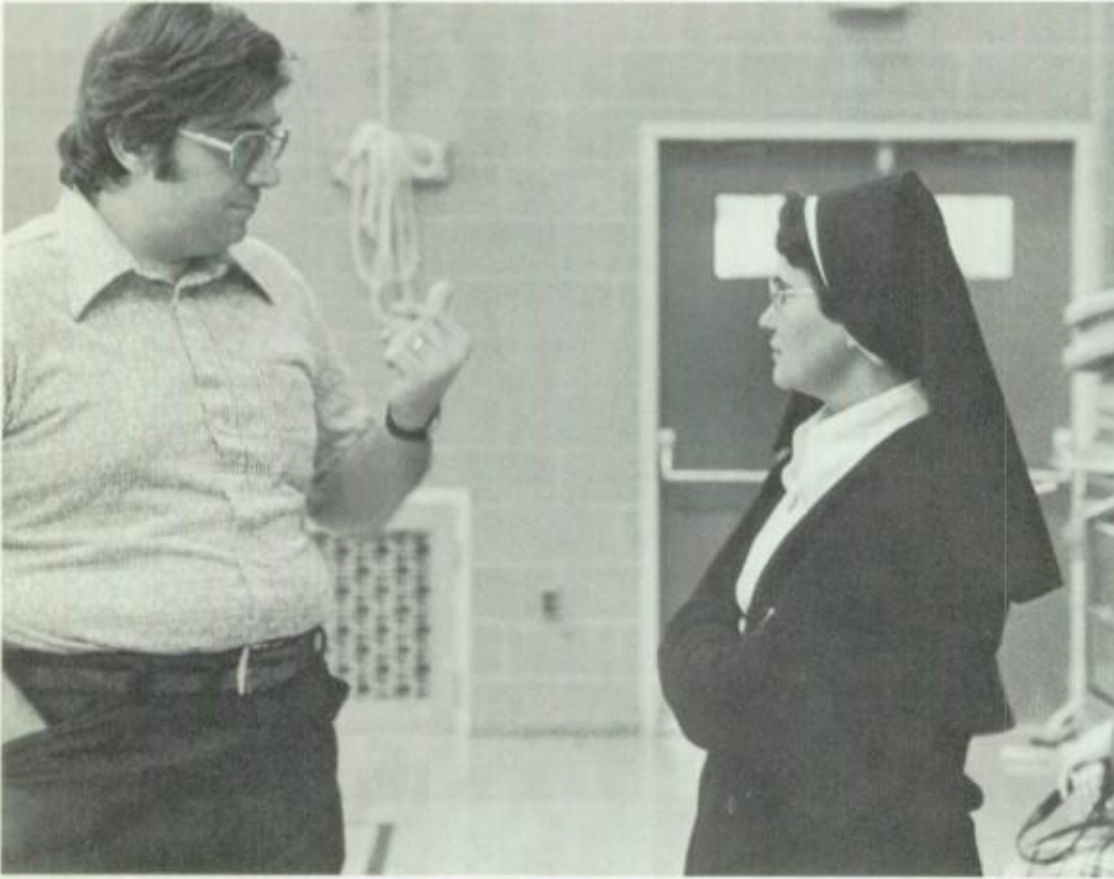

The Miracle Worker. The stubborn Keller household, the indomitable Miss Sullivan, and the animal-turned-human Helen came alive to the audience in this play of passion and courage.

Halloween

LEFT: Vicki Novak
BELOW: Dorothy Myers

"Did you ever see such a sight in your life as three blind mice?" Valerie Monahan, Phyllis LaVecchia, and Maureen Carr ask Ann Madura their musical question at the annual Halloween party sponsored by H.O.P.E.

"We've got to stop meeting like this!" whispers Barbara Ulman to Gabrielle McNeill.

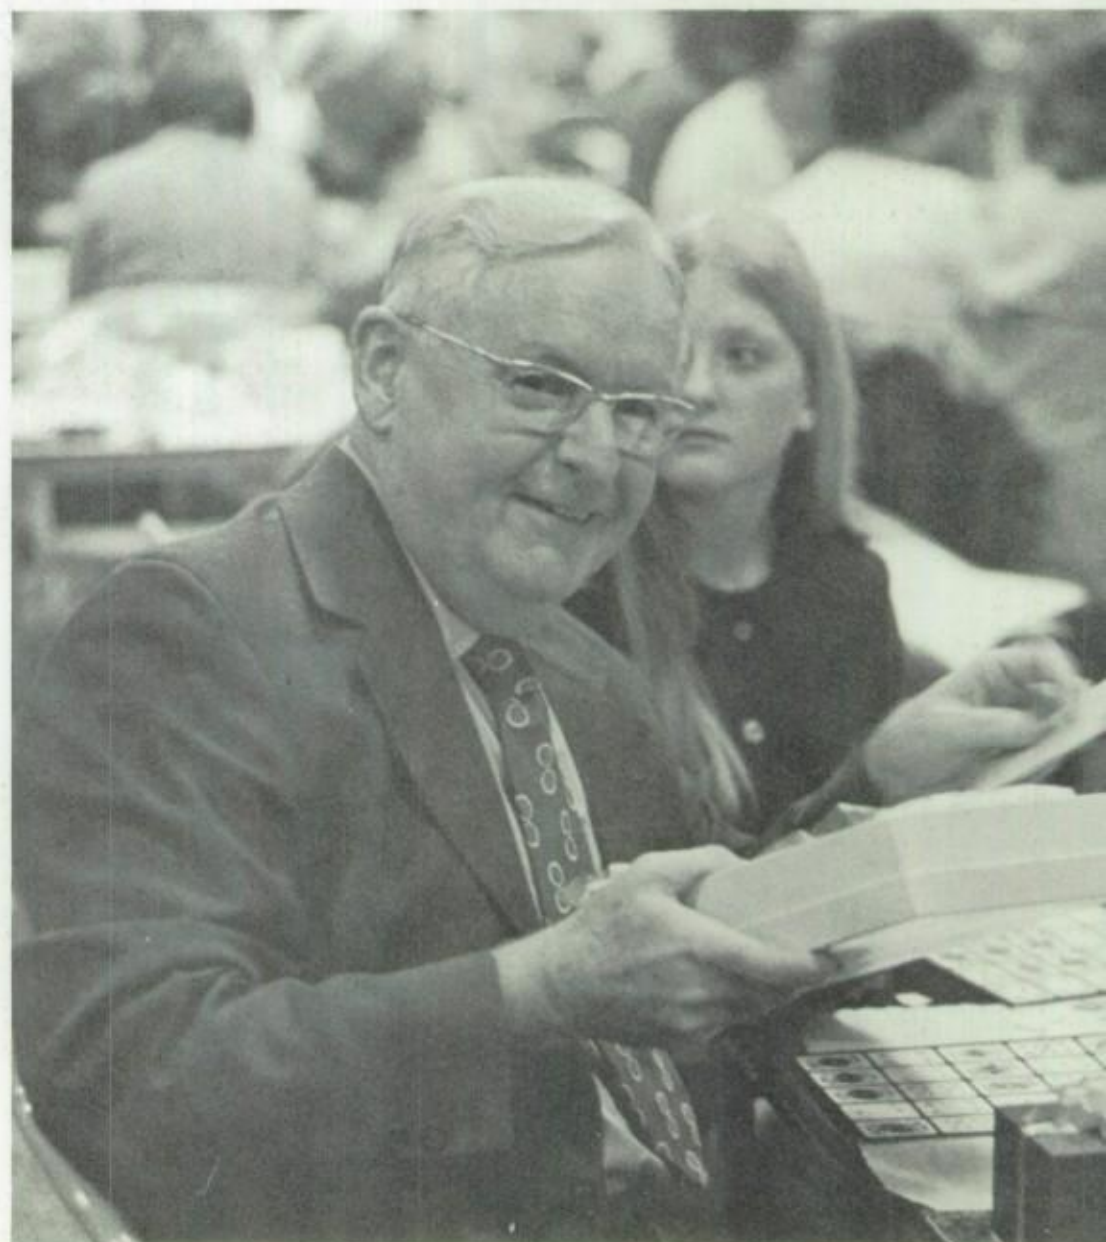

The yolk's on her as Sister Eloise walks on non-existent eggs.

Card Party

Mrs. James Miller and Mrs. Peter Ventriglia pitch in enthusiastically to finish the card party decorations.

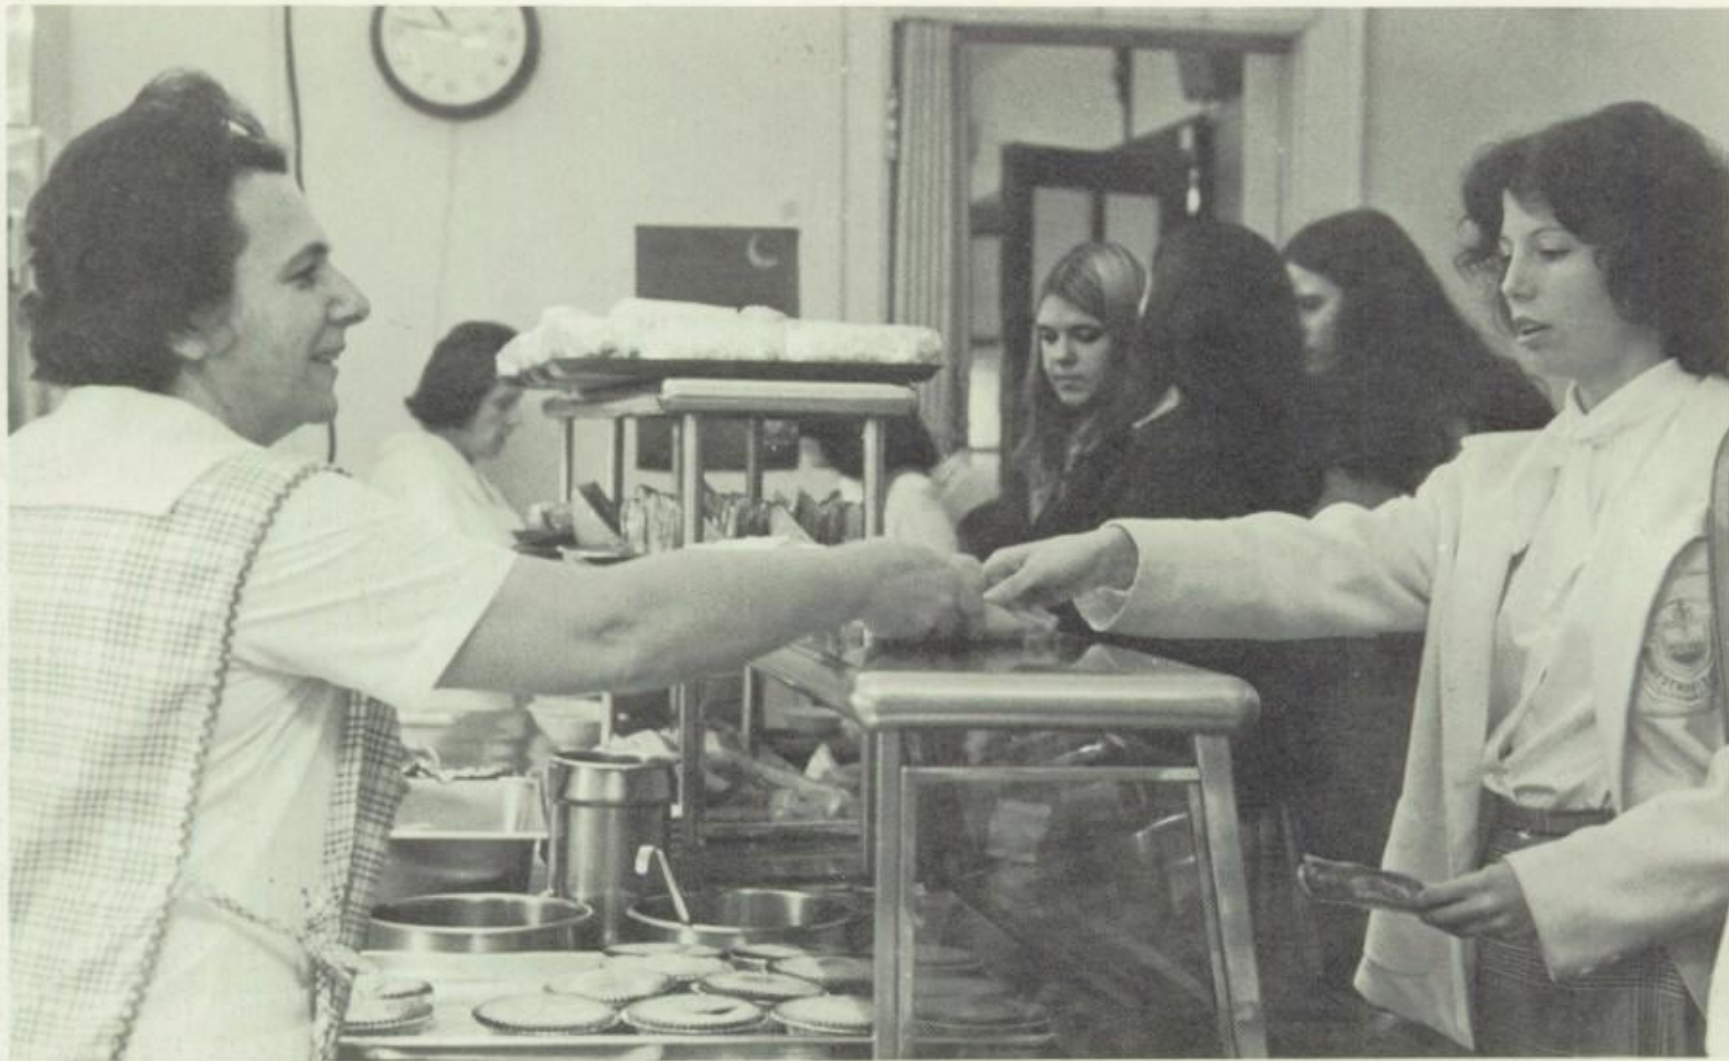

"Going once . . . going twice-" Gone, sold to the man with the sheepish grin.

Cafeteria

"Please, Ann, I want some more," says a ravenous Nancy Sesta to Mrs. Ann Morrone.

Student Council Week

Sister Carol Conly and the Council worked hard this year to make Student Council Week, January 29th, 30th, 31st, a time of enjoyment and enrichment. Mini-courses ranging from self-defense to astronomy were offered so that students could pursue their individual interests.

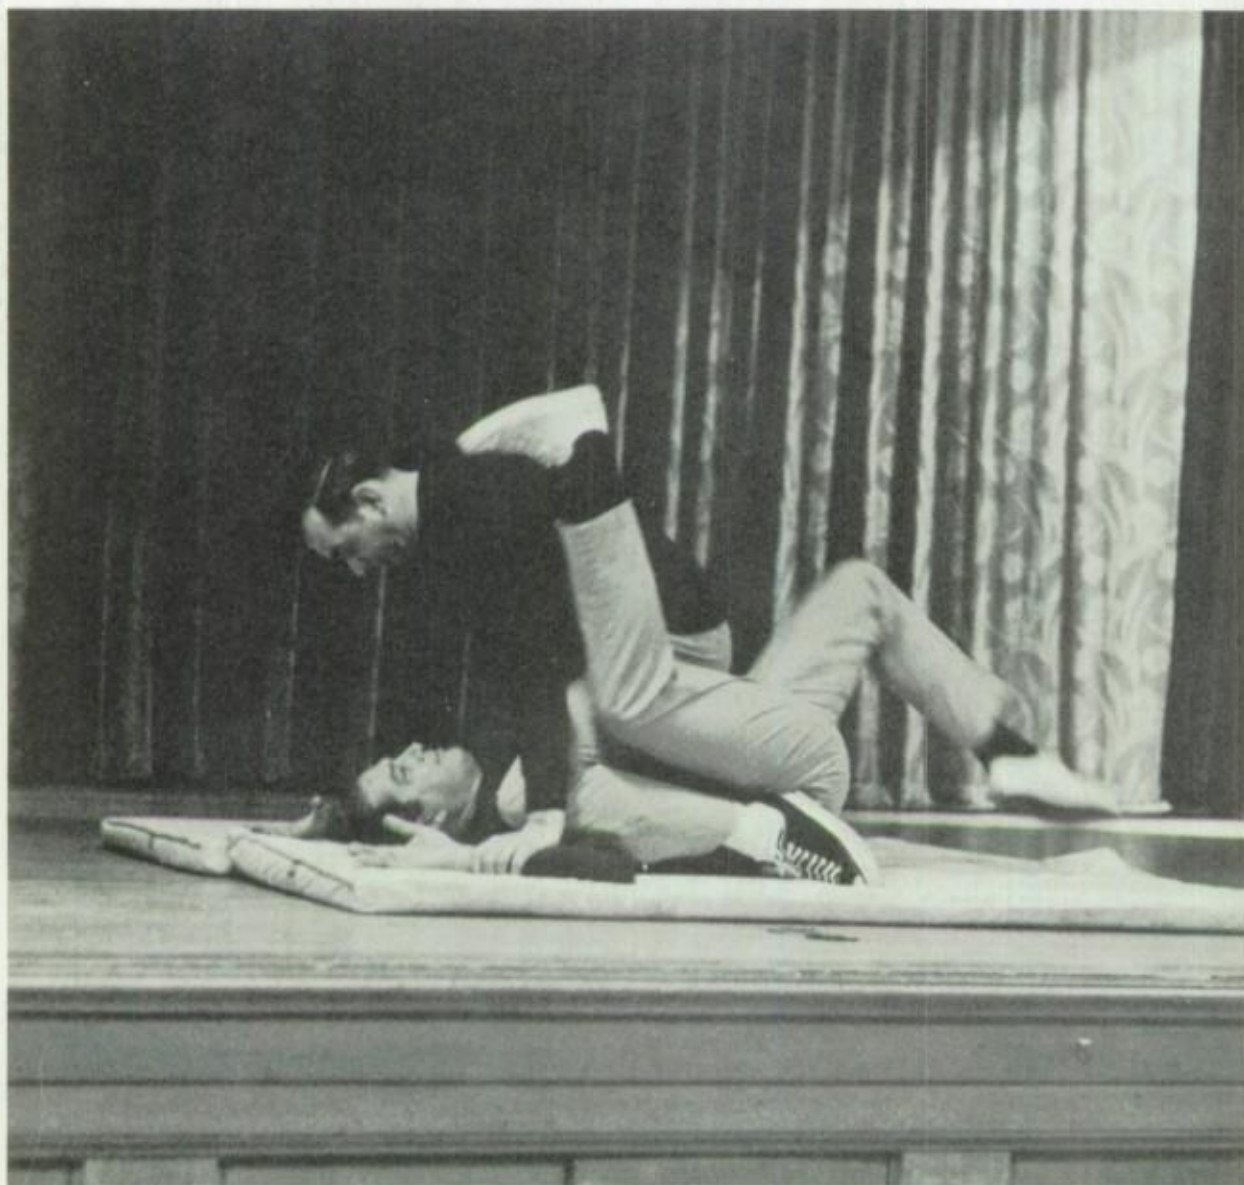

Also scheduled throughout the week were trips to various places such as the U.N., WCAU, an AM-FM radio station, and Rahway State Prison. These excursions gave the participants a wider view of the world outside M.S.M..

Thanks, Council, for a great week.

Beth Dyer sorts mini-course schedules for the week.

Boarders

Lynne Jennings assures Sister Macrina that all the dishes are spic-and-span.

Before 8:40 and after 2:40 there exists the very unique life of an M.S.M. boarder. She can be seen in a variety of ways—in curlers, in study, or just in the lounge enjoying the friendship of fellow residents.

After school a boarder, like a day-hop, can be found participating in any number of extracurricular activities, but with the sound of the dinner bell her life becomes different from that of a day student. Evening activities range from the Movie of the Week, to a party, to waiting on line for the phone.

No matter what she may be doing, a boarder's life is certainly a memorable experience.

MISS SUE ROSSI, Boarder Activities

Fathers' Club

The Fathers' Club discusses problems "big and small" at their monthly meeting.

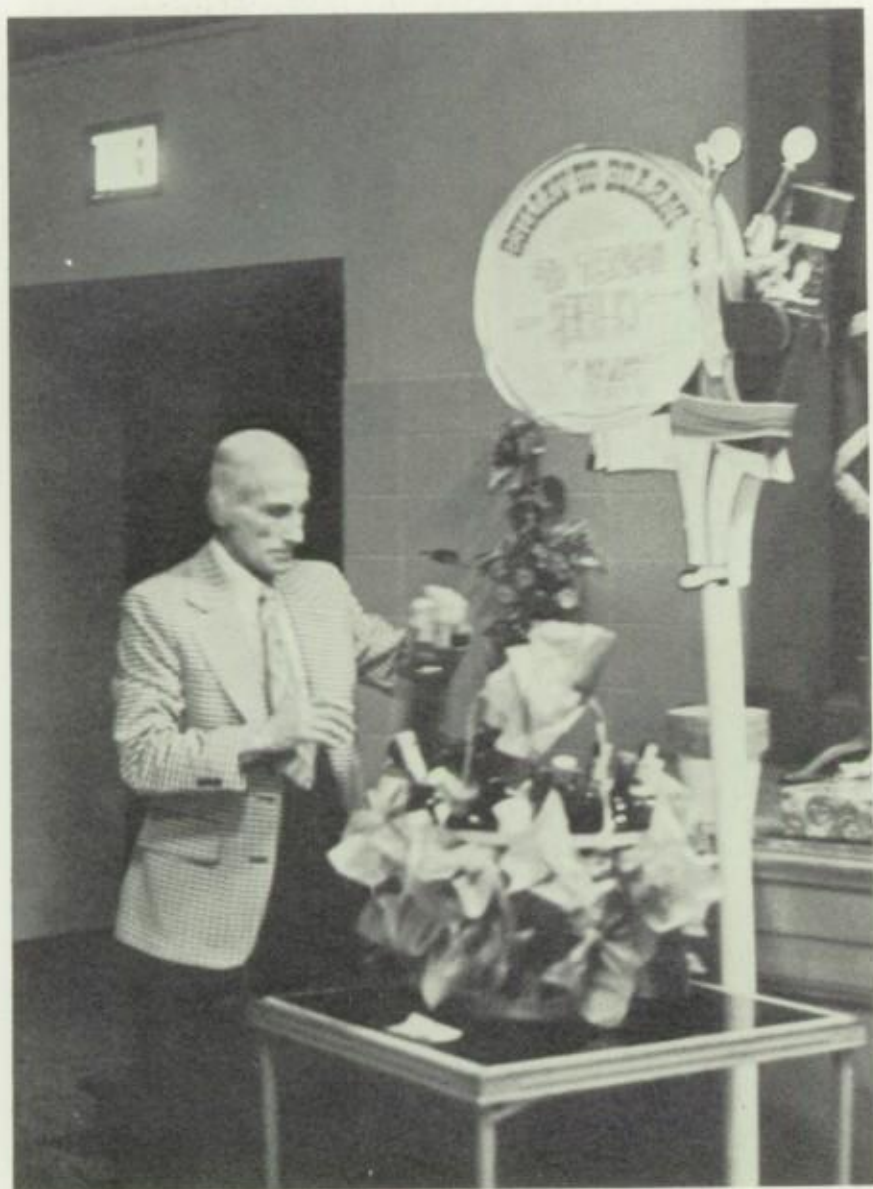

Broadening the scope of parent involvement in Mount activities, the dedicated dads of the Fathers' Club gathered monthly to discuss various ways to assist the faculty in making the Mount an even more pleasurable place for their daughters.

President Joseph Cantalupo and vice-president Dr. Sidney Piness received the help of their executive board and committee chairmen in sponsoring such activities as a Hawaiian Luau and a Spring Dance for the benefit of the school and the social enrichment of the parents.

Sister Shaun and Sister Assunta chat with one of the mothers about the festivities of the Spring Dance.

Mr. William Jacoby adjusts the basket of cheer which was raffled late that evening.

Mr. Raymond Bischoff demonstrates his reactions to the ideas of Mr. William Dwyer and Mr. Edward DeFillipo.

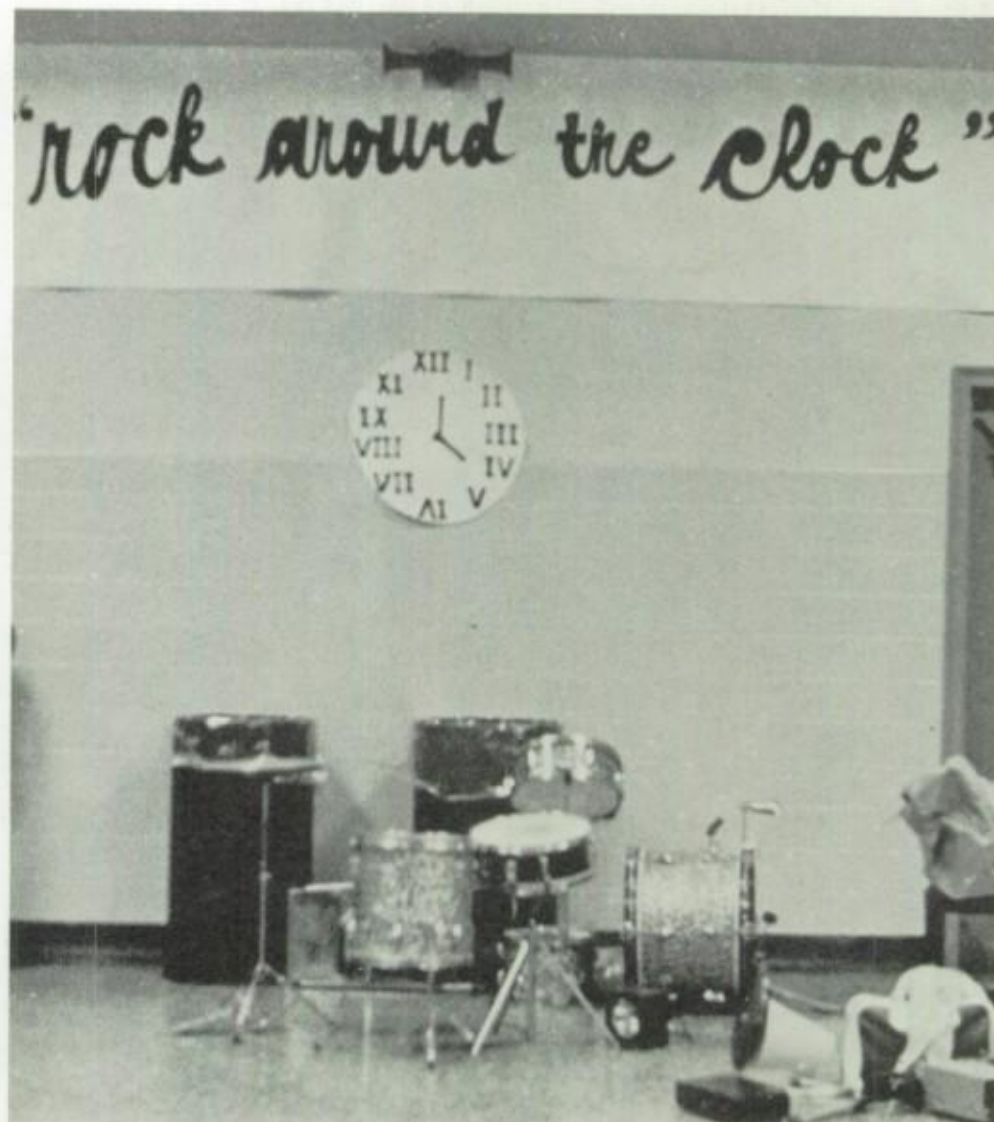

Mrs. Martha Jacoby and Mrs. Barbara DeFillipo spread some Easter joy as they do their rendition of the Bunny Hop.

Happy parents wave a cheery hello from the Spring dance.

Dance Marathon

Marathon winners Lori Maloney and Jim Jescbke finish out the last steps for a total of 18½ hours.

Sister Mystica yawns through the "wee" hours of the night as she keeps time records at the Marathon Dance.

As Officer Bob looks on, Suzanne Molina and Pam Lucas collect money at the Marathon for Honduras.

ODE TO NANCY: A FRIEND

*Well, Nancy, you're home now
I hope you're happy
You couldn't run or skip or dance
When you were on earth
But just think, now you can run on the clouds and play tag with the stars
The pain is over — Forever.*

*Nancy, if you see us down here, crying for you It's because we miss you
Your smile, your singing, your cheery hello.*

*You gave us help and understanding
So unselfish — so full of life and love
Your life was so short, and you lived it to the fullest Always seeing the bright side of things, rarely complaining
You saw the good in life and you personified it*

*Nancy, pray for us
That we may live our lives as well and fully
As you lived yours.*

Dear Sue,

5/23/75

I'm sure you had a lovely time living at the Mount with me. In a few years you can look at this lovely picture and realize all the fun we had boarding, whether it was making fun of Denise, or just being friends. Even though you were kind of silly, I really had fun and will miss you a lot. But of course you can come down and visit me down at Madura Pharmacy. So whatever you do, wherever you go, remember me and I will remember you. We will always be cross-town neighbors!

Love,
Helen

WHAT IS A SISTER?
*A sister is someone to lean on Someone you know will be there Someone who listens with patience
To all of your problems with care . . .
And though she may give you a lecture
When she thinks you have stepped out of line Somehow you just have the feeling
She loves you a lot all the time . . .
For there's no one else quite like a sister
When you have one, you love her a lot
And you know that no matter what happens
A sister's the best friend you've got!*

If you have read our forethoughts, you know that we wrote this before it. It's just another case of putting the cart before the horse.

This book was a joint effort; we did not do it single-handedly. Therefore, there are many people to whom we are greatly indebted, and we would like to acknowledge their contributions and thank them for any time they have given us.

We offer thanks to . . .

Normandy Studios, and especially Joe De Caro, for advice and for processing our pictures;

Mr. Everett and Rae Publishing Co. for printing our book and,

Megan Fitzgerald for a great cover.

To Sister Carolyn Martin, thank you seems inadequate, but since language is the sole means of communication in a yearbook, there is nothing else we can say.

So, thank you.

Dear Sue,
Are we insane? Maybe just a little.
Remember all the times we spent together at Blue Star, during and after school?
But the craziest, stupidest thing we ever did has got to be the times we sat right out in the open, calmly sharing a butt.
We deserve to get caught.
Have a great summer, don't eat too much, get a really good tan, and live;

Through out
the year I think I got so know you pretty well, you are a great person. & I wish you the best of luck always.
your friend
Sis

if I'm invited back, I'll see ya in September. I know how we polluted you, but try to be good! Love, Love & Beatlemania, Mary Anne

Sue,
you're a great kid and I'll never forget your funny laugh (I liked it even though it was weird - only kidding) well, have a great summer and also have fun at your new school. Come back and visit us if you ever have time. Take care!

Love,
Suzanne

S. S. I'll miss brushing my teeth with you every morning.

Sue,
it's been really nice knowing you since you are not coming back next year but you'll probably like it better there.
Have a nice summer. Keep getting your a's... bullshit.
(just kidding)

Love
Hilda

Sue,
all you & really enjoyed meeting
you. I hope to see you again in your future year.
Stay the same as you are fantastic. Love Always!
Vicky

Sue,
It has been nice knowing you. You better come and visit us. Have a good summer.
Love
Valerie

Sue,
This year next buy so fast, hope to see you again
you a really good kid don't change!
Love
Phyllis
